CONFERENCE (CALL FOR PAPERS)

11th INTERNATIONAL TRANSLATION CONFERENCE
COVID-19 AND CURRENT CHANGES IN TRANSLATION AND INTERPRETING STUDIES

The Translation and Interpreting Institute (TII) at Al-Mustansiriyah University's (HAKU) College of Humanities and Social Sciences (CHSS) is now accepting submissions for its 11th International Translation Conference.

This conference aims to examine how terrible pandemics have impacted all spheres, encompassing the international arena, the academic environment, and the redefinition of national sentiments. Those变性 points will be analyzed within diverse cultural and historical contexts, and as moments of sudden, medium- and long-term changes and transdisciplinary shifts. The conference will focus primarily, but not solely, on changes that have been caused or accentuated by the COVID-19 pandemic in the translation and interpreting (T&I) landscape. Presentations on the impact of the current pandemic that fit, but are not limited to, the following sub-themes, are welcome:

- T&I and Social Media
- T&I Pedagogical Trends and Gestures
- T&I Professional Trends and Praxis
- T&I and Safety Protocols in Healthcare
- T&I in the Arab World: After the Pandemic
- T&I Deployed Work Places and Data Security
- Audiovisual Translation and Beyond
- T&I: Diversity and Accessibility
- Changes in Teaching: Online Delivery and Blended Learning in T&I
- T&I Cultural, Linguistic, and Social Consequences
- Pandemic Pedagogy and Comparative Perspectives
- Selflessness, Hospitality and Identity
- Memory and Communication

Manuscripts in both Arabic and English will be accepted.
